ble politics might cause the administration if allowed to enter this national work, and he has issued instructions to S. N. D. North, Director of the Census, urging him that in the selection of supervisors in the South politics must not be considered.

There will be one supervisor in each Congressional district, and in districts where there are cities of any size there will be an additional supervisor.

The action of the President is said to be due to conferences he has held with BILL RECALLED FROM SENATE of 45 per cent on iron and steel sheets politicians from various sections of the country. There has gradually grown a belief that the selections would be made according to party affiliations and party standing, and the President believes this would be one of the worst steps that could be taken by the administration. Therefore he has asked Mr. North to rely upon the personal fitness of each applicant, and not under any circumstances to be guided by the political belief of the individual.

All the supervisors will be appointed on the indorsement of Senators, it is thought, as the Senate has added a provision to the census bill requiring them to This was determined yesterday when pound is provided for fron and stee

April's whims are almost human; she is like a nervous woman, and you don't know where you'll find her half a minute in advance; now she seems as sweet as honey, and her smiles are bright and sunny, but she'll soon be raising thunder, like a sailor at a dance. Now you see her gently crying, weeping showers and softly sighing, like a lorn and lonely maiden waiting for her latest mash; then again she comes cavorting, madder than a hen, and snorting, and she'll never give a reason for her idiotic dash. For a time she will caress you, jolly you along, and bless you, and when you are all enraptured she will up and box your ears. Oh, she is a stunning maiden, with her whims and tantrums laden, with her smiles and frowns and spasms, and her promises and

In the cotton schedule there has been an extension of the specific rates to cover a class of fancy goods and novelties which are covered in the existing law by ad valorem rates. The ad valorem rates, however, have not been increased in any case. The average rates in the cotton schedules, other than the rules on fancies and novelties, remain the same. There is one exception, where the committee has recommended restoration of the rates of the existing law. This was in the raw tlax schedule, which was restored to the dutiable list. The Senate committee still is considering what will be done with the duties on coal and hides. It is said a duty of 15 per cent will be placed on hides, and coal will be put under a duty of 40 cents a ton. This is mere speculation on the part of the members, and the committeemen insist that they are undecided.

In silks the committee adopted a specific rate instead of the ad valorem rates provided by the House committee. The rates, however, were not changed materially.
